God's blessings to you.

Finally, a full week of school is beginning. Routines are becoming normal again and schedules are becoming second nature. We will begin having math tests again for classes. I am not scheduling them for a definite date, but they will most likely appear at the end of this week or the beginning of next week. I will let your children know in class when they will be.

Book orders are in the Monday folders. My scholastic code is M3FWB if you would like to order online. January Book Orders will be due on Tuesday, January 31st.

The end of the quarter is coming up on the 20th. You can check your child's grades online at www.thinkwave.com and entering your username and password. If you have not set up an account, please email or ask me for a printout of the code. Remember that students can redo or correct homework that has been turned in. If you have a concern about their grades, feel free to contact me so we can work together to assist your child in doing their best.

God bless,

Jeff Weiss
